Q1 A SUMMARY OF SUMMER'S TRIUMPHS

The Library started the fiscal year off strong with a Certificate of Appreciation from the Faculty Senate (top photo). Third floor study rooms also got some technical upgrades with new Apple TVs, which allows students to use more of the digital resources available to them in group study (bottom left). We also got together and enjoyed a staff retreat at a Redbirds game (bottom right).

EXPANDING KNOWLEDGE In June, Research and Learning Services Librarian and College of Pharmacy Liaison, Hilary Jasmin, spearheaded a project to help herself and her coworkers grow their knowledge base as librarians in the form of a journal club. The group meets every other month and covers a variety of topics in librarianship including user instruction, diversity, and more!

Q2 NEW STUDENTS AND SCMLA

The biggest event of the second quarter was the Southern Chapter of the Medical Library Association annual meeting. UTHSC librarians and staff won several awards at this conference. Tamara Nelson received the Joint Council of Librarians of Color Conference Scholarship (bottom right). Annabelle Smith-Holt received the First-time Attendee Scholarship (bottom left). Sarah Thompson received the LIS Student Scholarship. The paper presentation "Tapping into an Underserved Group: Clinical Researchers," authored by several Library and The Tennessee Clinical and Translational Science Institute employees, also won the Research Paper Award for the conference.

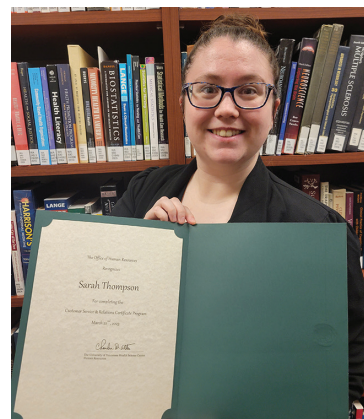

STUDENT SNACK EVENTS The second quarter was filled with providing students with study fuel. In September we hosted the Back To School Bash to welcomed back to campus with pizza. In October, we satisfied their sweet tooth with the Boo-Lean Bash. Finally, in December we had the Winter Warm-up to treat students to hot chocolate and cookies.

Q3 ESCAPING QUARTERLY NORMS

Between January and April, new data services were launched and several libguides were updated. The Library also held two student events: DoNuts for our Patrons and Shamrocks and Snacks. Sarah Thompson, Communications Coordinator, became the third member of Library staff to complete the Customer Service Certificate Program offered by the Office of Human Resources (bottom right). We also hosted a medicine-themed escape room in the Library for Interprofessional Education (IPE) Day (top).

17 UPDATED LIBGUIDES

Annabelle Holt, Research and Learning Services Librarian and College of Nursing Liaison, started the process of revamping the research guides. Libguides are research guides created by liaison librarians. They provide a librarian-curated list of the best-bet databases, the mostly highly rated books available through the library, and other high-yield resources.

SYSTEMATICALLY REVIEWED
Systematic Review Services Coordinator, Jenessa McElfresh, initiated and lead her coworkers in an exploration of the SR process from a research perspective. The Campbell Collaboration's open course "Systematic Review and Meta-Analysis-Open & Free" is used as the course material. Eight library faculty and staff participated in the course.

Q4 A QUARTER FULL OF CONFERENCES

The final quarter of the 2022-2023 academic year was filled with conferences. In June, eight Librarians traveled to Detroit for the 2023 Medical Library Association (MLA) Conference, presenting nine times on topics across the library spectrum. In May they went to the University of Memphis Law Library for the West Tennessee Academic Library Consortium conference where Sarah Thompson and Jenessa McElfresh presented on the UTHSC Library News video series.

HISTORICAL RESEARCH REQUESTS

HEALTH SCIENCE HISTORICAL COLLECTION

The Health Science Historical Collections continued its trend of growth for the 2022-2023 year. Research requests increased by 5% from the previous year. The HSHC continued to have a presence at numerous alumni events. New accessions included photos from the UTHSC chapter of the Phi Delta Chi pharmacy fraternity, memorabilia from the St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing, and materials from the UTHSC College of Health Professions.

The HSHC began a new initiative to increase representation of UTHSC's African American alumni community in the campus archives to ensure that we accurately represent the diversity of our campus and that our institutional memory includes under-represented voices. Working with Alumni Affairs, HSHC Archivist Jennifer Langford and Research and Learning Services Senior Librarian Tamara Nelson solicited donations from African American College of Medicine alumni. The HSHC also had a presence at the April 2023 CoM African American alumni reunion banquet to network with alumni about the project.

The year's biggest HSHC project was co-curating a permanent exhibit on the life and work of nursing theorist Dr. Margaret A. Newman with Director of the new Dr. Margaret A. Newman Center for Nursing Theory, Dr. Marie Gill. The exhibit was installed for the grand opening of the center on May 30. An in-depth collection was also curated for attendees of the Newman Center's scholarly dialogues held as part of the opening event on May 31. Collaboration between the HSHC and the Newman Center is ongoing, with a forthcoming digital collection and exhibits in progress.

Finally, the HSHC went viral thanks to a social media collaboration with HSL Communications Coordinator, Sarah Thompson! Sarah had the idea to adapt the "trinket box" video trend using objects from the archives. The resulting videos had over a million views, and Sarah won a Gold Award from the Public Relations Society of America.

DIGITAL COMMONS

Digital Commons is the UTHSC Institutional Repository. Managed by the Library, it disseminates UTHSC scholarship and research to a global audience. One of the biggest users of our institutional repository is the College of Nursing's Doctor of Nursing Practice Program. As part of their program, students must complete an evidence-based practice project. Once completed, this project is deposited in the repository where it's easy for students to collect research metrics, add to their curriculum vitae, and share with potential employers. Dr. Bobby B. Bellflower, DNSc, NNP-BC, FAANP, DNP Program Director said, "It makes a big difference for a nurse practitioner or nurse midwife or CRNA to be able to have a presentation on their CV and be able to show that presentation at a moments notice."

Carrie Harvey, PhD, APRN-BC, ACNP-BC, CHFN, continued saying, "it also has a benefit for faculty. Faculty can be part of that project as authorship."

NEW MANDATES NEW SERVICES

The National Institutes of Health announced their Data Management and Sharing Policy which went into effect for new grant applications beginning January 25, 2023.

Conversations had been happening for a number of years about the open sharing of data, which is why the UTHSC Library hired Jess Newman to be Research Data and Scholarly Communications Lead in 2018. When the news came out about the mandate, the Library knew its patrons would need more assistance with research data which led to bringing Sarah Newell on board as a Research Data and Assessment Librarian.

With the team assembled and the data policy announced, a series of interviews were done with researchers on campus to explore what services the library would need to develop to serve them after January 2023.

The new data dynamic duo did several presentations across campus including the campus wide presentation. Dozens of researchers in the right phase of their research cycle. There have also been hundreds of views on the newly renovated data libguide since its publication.

NEW RESEARCH SERVICES AVAILABLE:

- Data Management Plan Assistance
- Repository Selection and Submission Assistance
- Data Cleaning Tools
- Locating and Evaluating Data for Reuse
- Data Visualization Consultations

Jess Newman and Sarah Newell presented at several conferences about their findings. They are pictured above presenting at the annual conference of the Medical Library Association. They also shared their findings at the Southern Chapter of the Medical Library Association annual conference, the Southeast Midwest Data Librarian Symposium, and the Research Data Access and Preservation Summit.
