

COMPLIANCE NOTES:

Confidential Resources

WHAT IS A CONFIDENTIAL RESOURCE?

A confidential resource means that information shared is protected by federal and state laws and cannot be shared without your explicit permission. You are welcome to contact one of the university's confidential resources to learn about your reporting options, available support services, and resources.

PRIVACY VS. CONFIDENTIALITY

UT Health Science Center employees have different obligations and expectations when students disclose information to them.

Employees identified as "mandatory reporters/responsible employees" are expected to keep information private, meaning that it will only be shared internally with other University employees who need to know (like the Title IX Coordinator or Deputy Title IX Coordinators) and generally would not be shared externally. Designated reporters are typically expected to keep student information private.

A small group of employees are expected to keep information confidential. Confidential employees typically are guided by state and federal law that requires that they not share information without permission from the student or as otherwise permitted or required by law. Conversations with confidential employees are generally privileged and therefore have additional protections under state and federal law. This means that information disclosed to a confidential employee is not subject to disclosure in many instances. Psychologists, licensed counselors, psychiatrists, physicians, nurses, advocates, the Ombudsperson are some examples of confidential employees. (Note that conversations with the Ombudsperson are not privileged.)

Confidential employees are not required to make a report to the Title IX office and will typically not share information without your permission. However, they may be required or allowed to share information in certain circumstances. For example, if a court order is presented, if they have reason to believe that a student is at high risk for suicide or violence toward others or if a minor is being abused.

Ombudsperson: a person who investigates, reports on, and helps settle complaints: an individual usually affiliated with an organization or business who serves as an advocate for employees, students, etc.

The University of Tennessee is an EEO/AA/Title VI/Title IX/Section 504/ADA/ADEA institution in the provision of its education and employment programs and services.

A Professional employee, such as a physician, psychologist, psychiatrist, licensed counselor, or social worker, identified in this section, is a Confidential Employee only if the Complainant is communicating as if they are a patient or client. The designation of “Confidential Employee” can also include nonprofessional employees (i.e., staff, student-trainees or student-employees) or advocates who work or volunteer in on-campus health centers or a student support services area under the supervision of a person with a professional license. For instance, a class professor or clinical preceptor, who happens to be a physician or psychiatrist, would not be a Confidential Resource because such conversations would be part of an academic course of instruction and not for purposes of professional medical treatment or counseling. All faculty members are Mandatory Reporters.

Confidential Employees may periodically report non-personally identifiable information about Prohibited Conduct to the Title IX Coordinator to keep the Title IX Coordinator informed about the general extent and nature of Prohibited Conduct on and off campus.
