Black History Month in February celebrates the contributions that African Americans have made to American history in their struggles for freedom and equality and deepens our understanding of our Nation's history. As a Harvard-trained historian, Carter G. Woodson, like W. E. B. Du Bois before him, believed that truth could not be denied and that reason would prevail over prejudice. His hopes to raise awareness of African American's contributions to civilization was realized when he and the organization he founded, the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History (ASNLH), conceived and announced Negro History Week in 1925. The event was first celebrated during a week in February 1926 that encompassed the birthdays of both Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglass.

The response was overwhelming: Black history clubs sprang up; teachers demanded materials to instruct their pupils; and progressive whites, not simply white scholars and philanthropists, stepped forward to endorse the effort. By 1950, Negro History Week had become a central part of African American life and substantial progress had been made in bringing more Americans to appreciate the celebration. The celebration was expanded to a month in 1976 and renamed Black History Month.

The purpose of Black History month is to educate both African American and Non-African Americans on African American History while honoring the African Americans who have positively affected our nation. In 1986, Congress passed Public Law 99-244 which designated February 1986 as “National Black (Afro-American) History Month.” This law noted that February 1, 1986 would “mark the beginning of the sixtieth annual public and private salute to Black History.” For more information please visit http://www.africanamericanhistorymonth.gov/index.html
Diversity and Inclusion: UTHSC’s Funeral and Bereavement Leave Policy

Diversity is often described as being similarities and differences in addition to being described as the “mix” with inclusion being “how the mix works” within an organization. One way the University of Tennessee (UT) campuses maintain and enhance a diverse and inclusive culture is through its many policies. In this instance, we will focus on the funeral and bereavement leave policy (HR Policy 0340). This policy demonstrates how diversity and inclusion is an advantage in light of those referenced similarities and differences.

The objective of UT’s system wide funeral and bereavement leave policy is to provide time off without loss of pay for regular university employees for bereavement and to attend the funeral of a close relative. Guidelines for this policy advise:

1. An employee who is absent during a regularly scheduled work week due to the death of a spouse, child or step-child, or parent or step-parent, may receive payment for reasonable and customary days absent, not to exceed five (5) regularly scheduled work days for bereavement in conjunction with attending the funeral.

2. An employee who is absent for funeral and bereavement during a regularly scheduled work week due to the death of a grandparent, grandchild, parent-in-law, foster parent, brother, sister, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, daughter-in-law, or son-in-law may receive payment for reasonable and customary days absent, not to exceed three (3) regularly scheduled work days.

The referenced policy demonstrates UT employees are valued because of, and not in spite of, their differences. The University of Tennessee Health Science Center (UTHSC) is a workplace with team members from many different cultures of varying religious beliefs. It goes without saying that memorable life events for each team member will be celebrated differently. Meaning, death and grief are normal life events that touch all of us but more important the feelings and symptoms of grief may affect our health and well-being or how we function at work. When a member of the UTHSC community is grieving the loss of a loved one, colleague or co-worker, the entire workplace (i.e., office; unit; department) feels the effect.

Bereavement leave is also paid leave that an employee is entitled to per the following policy excerpt:

3. Pay for each day of funeral and bereavement leave taken will be made at the employee’s current rate of pay for a scheduled day’s work not to exceed the hours for which the employee is normally scheduled to work. Any holidays and days of administrative closing occurring during this time will be counted as part of the funeral and bereavement leave and recorded as holiday(s) or day(s) of administrative closing pay.

4. An employee may be required to furnish verification of the reason for the absence upon request of his or her supervisor or the campus human resources office.

A closer look advises that the funeral and bereavement policy enables an employee to attend the funeral, services, ceremonies, and/or interment, make necessary arrangements, any travel related to a death and bereavement time. Because the workplace is more diverse there may be consideration for unusual circumstances (i.e., attending funeral services outside the U.S.; remains being transported from overseas). Managers and administrators also have the flexibility to grant requests for additional paid (as available and appropriate) and unpaid leave time beyond the paid bereavement leave to the extent practicable. This is just another way UT demonstrates being supportive of its employees through a policy that specifically acknowledges loss of an immediate family and other relatives. UTHSC’s Office of Human Resources can provide additional guidance on the funeral and bereavement policy that includes information about the employee assistance program (EAP).

UTHSC’s Office of Equity and Diversity responded to several faculty and staff requests in September 2010 that encouraged greater campus communication regarding the loss of a team member and a team member’s personal loss. As a result the Condolences Listserv was created and launched on September 15, 2010 for each UTHSC employee to join through a voluntary subscription process. The purpose of the Condolences Listserv is to provide UTHSC faculty and staff employees a voluntary option to announce the loss of a team member and loss in a team member’s immediate and extended families to include funeral arrangements/services. To join as a voluntary subscriber go to http://listserv.uthsc.edu/mailman/listinfo/condolences and complete the outlined steps to become a member.

In closing, UT’s funeral and bereavement policy clearly supports the full integration of all team members beyond race, ethnicity, gender and religion while demonstrating fair employment practices, an openness to difference and a commitment to diversity and inclusion.
The Office of Equity and Diversity created the ADA Advisory Committee in August 2008 to be more effective in responding to ADA and Section 504 related concerns. According to Lee (1994), a simple definition of an advisory committee is a group of volunteers that meets regularly on a long-term basis to provide advice and/or support to an institution or one of its subunits.

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, Section 504, advise that no qualified person will be denied access to, participation in, or the benefits of, any program or activity operated by UTHSC because of disability. UTHSC will not discriminate against qualified individuals with disabilities in employment practices and activities, including, but not limited to, application procedures, hiring, tenure, promotion, advancement, termination, training, compensation and benefits. Moreover, UTHSC will not discriminate against a qualified individual because of the known disability of another individual with whom the qualified individual is known to have a relationship or association.

The mission of the reactivated ADA Advisory Committee is to assist in the continued development of accessibility at UTHSC. The committee is comprised of several UTHSC faculty and staff members from varying departments. Below is the charge and the 2015 members of the ADA Advisory Committee.

Charge to the Committee

- advise the Office of Equity and Diversity regarding activities that would heighten disability awareness and sensitivity issues on campus;
- make recommendations regarding development and implementation of policies and procedures in the area of services to students and employees with disabilities;
- advise the Office of Equity and Diversity and other university offices related to disability services in addressing the needs and concerns of students and employees with disabilities; make recommendations on how to best provide input to the campus on concerns and issues related to architectural and existing facility barriers;

The committee will not be limited to these matters, but will focus on them as matters of greatest concern.

This Lichterman Award is presented annually to a non-exempt UT or UTMG employee who demonstrates the high standards and positive characteristics as they were exemplified by Thomas Connell Lichterman. Ruby McNeal is the 2015 Lichterman Award winner. Ms. McNeal currently works as an Administrative Coordinator in Microbiology, Immunology & Biochemistry departments with 13 years of service at UTHSC. The winner of the Lichterman receives a plaque and a $1,500 gift.

In 2015, one deserving employee was the recipient of the CESA Nakeshi Dyer. At the receipt of her award, Nakeshi had 4 years of service and today works as an Educational Specialist in Student Academic Support Services and Inclusion (SASSI). The winner received a plaque and a $1,500 gift respectively.
Ashleigh Brock, JD
Equity Assurance Administrator

Ashleigh successfully completed the Workforce Diversity Certification Program offered by UCLA Extension and the National Organization for Workforce Diversity (NOW Diversity). The program focused on best practices in the workplace that advance diversity awareness and inclusion.

Jenna Fielding
Associate Equity Assurance Specialist

Jenna recently completed the Myer’s Briggs Type Indicator Certification. The Myer’s Briggs Type Indicator (MBTI) is one of the most widely used personality assessments, used to increase one’s understanding of oneself and others. MBTI Certified Practitioners both administer the assessment and interpret its results.

The audience will go on a dramatic "Journey Back in Time" when the first twenty Africans were discovered on a Dutch Freighter that docked in Jamestown, Virginia in 1619. They will experience spectacular historical events that caused the enslavement of Africans and the events that eventually dismantled the Slave System in America. They will also witness several demonstrations like picking and chopping cotton, a slave auction, how to read secret quilt codes, a Civil Rights March and plenty of "Bouncing into Black History Through Music" songs.
